

Kinetic

A Reader's Theater Script

2 Readers: Reporter
 Kinetic

Reporter: The basketball game has just ended. And what an event it was! This is Watchdog Reporter on the court to interview the most valuable player of the game. Kinetic, you really brought out the fireworks tonight. How do you feel?

Kinetic: I feel dynamic. I played really well. My aim in the game was dominate and excel!

Reporter: Well, you did that alright. You really gave your public quite a show. I think everyone would have to agree! You seemed to exceed what everyone expected this evening! How does that make you feel?

Kinetic: I feel like real a winner. I never have to pretend. I always bring my A game. On that you can depend.

Reporter: Kinetic, your three-pointers broke records tonight, and your footwork was like magic. You showed us solid motion... a real aerobic workout this evening. How does that make you feel?

Kinetic: When I'm sweeping down the court, I plan to excite. I don't know how to be static when my engines ignite. I'm like a breezy, speeding blur... so fast I'm unseen. Do you hear what I'm saying? Respect this motion machine!

Reporter: Indeed, you are one of the fastest to ever play the game, Kinetic. And you seem to do it with almost no effort. This place is like a child's playground for you. It seems like we bat one eyelash and you're at the other end of the court. How do you make it look so easy? And how do you feel?

Kinetic: For some, it might take effort. For some, the energy is hectic. But for this motion machine, it's just poetic Kinetic!

Reporter: Well, you are at the top of your game tonight. The crowd was hoping for an outstanding show, and you delivered. We always knew you had potential. But tonight, you proved that you have earned your name. Kinetic, ladies and gentlemen. This is Kinetic. Thank you for joining us, Kinetic... and how do you feel?

Kinetic: You keep asking how I feel. I feel like I passed the test! Now you know that you're my dog, but now my engines need a rest. You're welcome for the time. I've enjoyed this little rap. But now I've got to go... because Kinetic needs a nap.

Reporter: There you have it, ladies and gentlemen. And there he goes... snoring like a champ right there on the bench. This has been Watchdog Reporter with a wrap-up of tonight's contest. And now I feel exhausted from watching all that Kinetic energy. Somebody bring me a pillow. I'm thinking of a nap on the bench, myself. And I'm feeling more than a little potential that a nap is exactly what is next. Good night!

A Reader's Theater Script
© HAPPY Reading 2011
www.happyreading.org